

Workplace sexual harassment, bullying and discrimination

Recorded: 14 November 2018 | 1 hour
2018/2019 CPD year

Overview

Queensland Law Society is committed to leading the profession towards healthy, safe, inclusive and respectful workplaces.

Sexual harassment, bullying and discrimination are unacceptable, unethical and inexcusable behaviours.

Join our experts for a practical and informative session on:

- the prevalence of sexual harassment, bullying and discrimination in the legal profession
- definitions and examples of this type of behaviour
- available options if you are experiencing sexual harassment, bullying or discrimination in your workplace
- QLS initiatives in this space.

This complimentary member recording aims to raise awareness of and better understand this type of behaviour in our profession.

It is an initiative of QLS' Equity and Diversity Committee and QLS' Wellbeing Working Group.

1 CPD point

Sexual harassment, bullying and discrimination in the legal profession

Join our panel for a practical and informative session on workplace sexual harassment, bullying and discrimination, covering:

- the prevalence of sexual harassment, bullying and discrimination in the legal profession
- the definitions sexual harassment, bullying and discrimination
- examples of this type of behaviour
- what you can do if you are experiencing sexual harassment, bullying or discrimination in your workplace
- coping strategies
- QLS' initiatives in this space.

Presenters:

Ann-Maree David, CEO, College of Law Queensland, president, Australian Women Lawyers and chair, QLS' Equity and Diversity Committee

Belinda Winter, Partner, Cooper Grace Ward Lawyers and member, QLS' Wellbeing Working Group

Host: Grace van Baarle, Manager, QLS Ethics and Practice Centre and Solicitor, Queensland Law Society